DEVELOPER OF THE YEAR

Jeffrey R. Anderson

This year's Developer of the Year is awarded to Jeffrey R. Anderson Real Estate. Jeffrey R Anderson Real Estate completed its final piece of the $170 million Rookwood Exchange project with the September 2017 opening of the 118-key Residence Inn by Marriott. Featuring the region's first 150-space underground car-lift parking operation, this hotel completes the development of the 12-acre site known as Rookwood Exchange. The Anderson-developed Rookwood Projects created the platform for what is now called the "Midtown" market to grow and thrive. So much so, that other firms recognized the renewed value of the area and have privately developed numerous successful assets in this "new" market. Collectively, these assets represent a 25-year redevelopment commitment by Jeffrey R Anderson Real Estate that has not only transformed the Smith-Edwards Exit and the City of Norwood, but also has continually redefined retail, mixed use, and successful public-private partnerships from the Greater Cincinnati Marketplace.

INDUSTRIAL DEAL OF THE YEAR

Industrial Deal of the Year goes to Park North at Monroe. In October of 2015, IDI Gazeley announced it would deliver Park North at Monroe Building 8, Greater Cincinnati's largest speculative industrial facility to date. Hayneedle.com would announce their intention to lease the entire facility in January 2017. This deal was a win-win for the State of Ohio, Warren County, the City of Monroe, Hayneedle.com and IDI Gazeley as new jobs were created and an existing company re-invested in our region.

Office Deal of the Year goes to Empower MediaMarketing. Fueled by the urban renaissance taking place in Over-the-Rhine, Empower searched for a location to house its growing business. The team has created one of most creative and energetic designs in the entire region, and the largest office headquarters project in the Over the Rhine area to date, thus spurring more redevelopment and amenities in all the surrounding blocks.
